

Registration of New Students 2017/2018 Academic Year

The College of Biological and Physical and Sciences (CBPS) admitted new students for the academic year 2017/2018. The process which began on September 4th, 2017 was unique unlike previous registrations where students were registered manually. During this year's registration, student's details were captured electronically using the biometric kits. Capturing the student's details using biometric kits is important for the college. It will allow the college keep track of the actual number of students at any given instance as well as enhance security owing to the student details available through their finger prints.

Drawn from across the country, the newly admitted students will have an opportunity to pursue various courses of their choice at the College of Biological and Physical and Sciences.

The College of Biological and Physical and Sciences has as four schools; School of Physical Sciences, School of Biological Sciences, School of Mathematics and School of Computing and Informatics; four departments; Chemistry, Geology, Meteorology and Physics; One institute: Institute for Climate Change and Adaptation; and the Centre For Biotechnology & Bioinformatics.

The process which begun on September 4th, 2017 will end on September 8th, 2017
